Michael and Margaret (Slaymaker) FICKLE
1709-1771 -1795

and

their descendants

Michael CKLE was born ca 1709. At the age of twenty-five years he immigrated to America in the year 1734. He arrived in Philadelphia the 23rd day of Sept. 1734.aboard the ship "Hope" sometimes referred to as the "Hope Galley". The ships master being Daniel Reid. The ship sailed from Rotterdam and last from Cowes, England. The same day they landed, forty nine men with their families, making in all one hundred twenty-seven persons, were qualified at the court house in Philadelphia. Present were the Honorable Mt. Governor, the Mayor of the city and others of the Ma istracy.

Michael's wife was Margaret (SLAYMAKER). She was the daughter of Matthias SLAYMAKER (SCHLIERMACHER) meaning awning and drapery maker. Matthias was born in Hesse Kassel, Germany. He moved to the city of Strasbourg, then part of the German Empire, in the Province of Alsace. His land of 1,000 acres was purchased from the London Company. This land today (1986) is situated in the Pequea Valley of Lancaster County., PA. In 1710 when it is said Matthias and his wife Catherine came to America, this was Chester County.and became Lancaster in 1729. Matthias and Catherine had seven children, five sons and two daughters; Lawrence, Matthias 11, John, Henry, Daniel, Margaret and Barbara. The 1909 "History of the Slaymaker Family" compiled by Henry Cochran Slaymaker states that Margaret married Michael Fickle, many of whose descendants then lived near Carlisle, PA/

No evidence has been found to indicate whether the Fickle family and the Schleiermacherfamily were acquainted before emigrating to America. It is not known when or where Margaret and Michael were married. However, in 1736 Michael Fickle took up land immediately adjacent to Matthias Slaymaker. (see map attached). We have no record of the birth of their children. The information on the Slaymaker Family was found in the Harrisburg State Library in Nov. 1985.

Six years after Michael purchased land next to the Slaymakers he purchased 100 A on a branch North of Bermudian Creed adjoining Andrew Bowlinger's land, Lancaster Co., PA. This purchase was in 1742 and he was then 33 years of age. In 1749 York Co. was carved from Lancaster and he then bacame a resident of York, Co.

In 1759 Michael was Constable, Huntington Twp. York Co. and in 1760 a Tax Collector. He was on the tax rolls in 1762.

Then at the age of 54 Michael moves on. He purchases a tract of land called Brooks Discovery from Robert Miller, Frederick Co., MD. This was 236 Acres and some where on Piney Creek. Three years later on 7 May 1766 he purchased 100 A. called Point Lying from John Harger.

By the fall of 1770 he was apparently in failing health. He made his will on the 20th of Nov. and it was probated on 3 Jan. 1771. He probably died on his plantation on Piney Creek Hundred.

His wife Margaret Slaymaker Fickle lived on making her will on 9 Jan. 1794 and probated 3 Apr. 1795 almost twenty-five years after her husband Michael's decease.

It is not altogether clear about the number of children born to Margaret and Michael. Michael lists the following in his will:

Gabriel	Isaac
Mary	Jonathan
Joseph	Esther
Matthias	Naomi
Daniel	Rachel
Benjamin	Elizabeth

This makes 12, yet he refers to his eleven children. He further states that his five youngest are Benjamin, Isaac, Jonathan, Naomi and Rachel. Twice he uses the phrase "my eleven children." However, before naming his eleven children he leaves to "my beloved daughter Elizabeth the sum of ten pounds common money. He also uses the term, "my one wife" twice.

Margaret in her will lists her children as follows:

Gabriel	Naomi Baldwin
Mary Dunn/Dunn	Isaac
Elizabeth Williams	Jonathan - deceased
Joseph	Rachel
Mathias
Esther Wilson
Benjamin

Why Margaret did not include Daniel in her will is not known. The burial place of neither Michael nor Margaret has been located.

The following is the information to date on each of the sons and daughters of Michael and Margaret (Slaymaker) Fickle.

Michael Fickle and His Descendants

Michael Fickel, listed as Michal Fikle in Volume II of Strassburger's Pennsylvania German Pioneers, p142-6, came to the Colonies of America in 1734 aboard the Ship Hope Galley. "Phila Septr 23d 1734. The above is a true list of the Palatines imported by me. Daniel Reed." (Daniel Riedt) "List 37C. At the Courthouse of Philadelphia, Septr 23d, 1734. Present The Honble Patrick Gordon, Esqr, Lieut Governor, Thomas Griffits, Esqr, Mayor, Charles Read, Espr. The Palatines whose Names are underwritten, imported in the Ship Hope, Daniel Reed, Master, from Rotterdam but last from Cowes, did this day take and subscribe the Oaths to the Government. Michael Fickel." [1]

Michael was born about 1709, presumed born in the Germanic lands. Michael settled in Pennsylvania area where he met and married Margaret Slaymaker (Schliermacher), born prior to 1708. Margaret was the daughter of Matthias Slaymaker (Schliermacher) meaning awning and drapery maker. Matthias was born in Hesse Kassel, Germany. He moved to the city of Strasbourg, then part of the German Empire, in the Province of Alsace. Coming to the Colonies, he purchased one thousand acres from the London Company, which is situated in the Pequea Valley of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. No evidence has been found to indicate whether the Fickle family and the Schliermacher family were acquainted before emigrating to America. It is not known when or where Margaret and Michael were married. However, in 1736 Michael Fickle took up land immediately adjacent to Matthias Slaymaker.

Roena,

Finally found the note Gerald Fickel gave me as to where the Fickels came from in Germany.

"GUSTADT, GERMANY, 20 miles from Manheim on the Rhine. (Southeast of Worms.)"

Don't know where he got the info.

Michael and Margaret (Slaymaker) FICKLE
1709-1771 -1795

Michael FICKLE was born ca 1709. At the age of twenty-five years he immigrated to America in the year 1734. He arrived in Philadelphia the 23rd day of Sept. 1734 aboard the ship "Hope" sometimes referred to as the "Hope Galley". The ships master being Daniel Reid. The ship sailed from Rotterdam and last from Cowes, England. The same day they landed, forty nine, men with their families, making in all one hundred twenty-seven persons, were qualified at the court house in Philadelphia. Present were the Honorable Lt. Governor, the Mayor of the city and others of the Ma istracy.

Michael's wife was Margaret (SLAYMAKER). She was the daughter of Matthias SLAYMAKER (SCHLIERMACHER) meaning awning and drapery maker. Matthias was born in Hesse Kassel, Germany. He moved to the city of Strasbourg, then part of the German Empire, in the Province of Alsace. His land of one thousand acres was purchased from the London Company. This land today (1986) is situated in the Pequea Valley of Lancaster County., PA. In 1710 when it is said Matthias and his wife Catherine came to America, this was Chester County and became Lancaster in 1729. Matthias and Catherine had seven children, five sons and two daughters; Lawrence, Matthias 11, John, Henry, Daniel, Margaret and Barbara. The 1909 "History of the Slaymaker Family" compiled by Henry Cochran Slaymaker states that Margaret married Michael Fickle, many of whose descendants then lived near Carlisle, PA.

No evidence has been found to indicate whether the Fickle family and the Schl iermacherfamily were acquainted before emigrating to America. It is not known when or where Margaret and Michael were married. However, in 1736 Michael Fickle took up land immediately adjacent to Matthias Slaymaker. (see map attached). We have no record of the birth of their children. The information on the Slaymaker Family was found in the Harrisburg State Library in Nov. 1985.

Six years after Michael purchased land next to the Slaymakers he purchased 100 A on a branch North of Bermudian Creed adjoining Andrew Bowlinger's land, Lancaster Co., PA. This purchase was in 1742 and he was then 33 years of age. In 1749 York Co. was carved from Lancaster and he then became a resident of York, Co.

In 1759 Michael was Constable, Huntington Twp. York Co. and in 1760 a Tax Collector. He was on the tax rolls in 1762.

Then at the age of 54 Michael moves on. He purchases a tract of land called Brooks Discovery from Robert Miller, Frederick Co., MD. This was 236 Acres and some where on Piney Creek. Three years later on 7 May 1766 he purchased 100 A. called Point Lying from John Harger.

By the fall of 1770 he was apparently in failing health. He made his will on the 20th of Nov. and it was probated on 3 Jan. 1771. He probably died on his plantation on Piney Creek Hundred.

His wife Margaret Slaymaker Fickle lived on making her will on 9 Jan. 1794 and probated 3 Apr. 1795 almost twenty-five years after her husband Michael's decease.

No evidence has been found to indicate whether the Hickle family and the Bohlsterman/Smily were acquainted before emigrating to America. It is not known when or where Margaret and Michael were married. However, in 1734 Michael Hickle took up land immediately adjacent to Matthias Slaymaker. (see map attached). We have no record of the birth of their children. The information on the Slaymaker family was found in the Pennsbury State Library in Nov. 1985.

Six years after Michael purchased land next to the Slaymakers he purchased 100 A on a branch North of Mermuthan Creek adjoining Andrew Dowlinger's land, Lancaster Co., PA. This purchase was in 1742 and he was then 33 years of age. In 1749 York Co. was carved from Lancaster and he then became a resident of York, Co.

In 1759 Michael was Constable, Huntington Twp. York Co. and in 1760 a Tax Collector. He was on the tax rolls in 1762.

By the fall of 1780 he was apparently in failing health. He made his will on the 20th of Nov. and it was probated on 3 Jan. 1781. He probably died on his plantation on Piney Creek Mundred.

His wife Margaret Slaymaker Hickle lived on making her will on 9 Jan. 1794 and probated 3 Apr. 1795 almost twenty-five years after her husband Michael's decease.

It is not altogether clear about the number of children born to Margaret and Michael. Michael lists the following in his will:

Gabriel	Isaac
Mary	Jonathan
Joseph	Esther
Matthias	Naomi
Daniel	Rachel
Benjamin	Elizabeth

This makes 12, yet he refers to his eleven children. He further states that his five youngest are Benjamin, Isaac, Jonathan, Naomi and Rachel. Twice he uses the phrase "my eleven children." However, before naming his eleven children he leaves to "my beloved daughter Elizabeth the sum of ten pounds common money. He also uses the term, "my one wife" twice.

Margaret in her will lists her children as follows:

Gabriel	Naomi Baldwin
Mary Dun/Dunn	Isaac
Elizabeth Williams	Jonathan - deceased
Joseph	Rachel
Mathias
Esther Wilson
Benjamin

Why Margaret did not include Daniel in her will is not known. The burial place of neither Michael nor Margaret has been located.

The following is the information to date on each of the sons and daughters of Michael and Margaret (Slaymaker) Fickle.

Subject: The Maiden name

Hi,
I started doing the family history when my mother became upset because of errors on many postings. I started gathering the data as quickly as I could. I found the maiden name from using the related family names in the 1675 to 1725 time frame in Europe. I did not make note of which site I found the name on as I thought it was well known. Look at the information on Mathias (see World-Connect, I am seadragon5) and you will see that Margaret was born in New York. A surprise for you? They (the Slaymaker's) came to the Colonies with Conrad Weiser to New York and had to wait 2 years until the survey work was completed on the lands sold to them by Willliam Penn.
The pamphlet from White Chimneys gives some of this history as well as the Ferree family history. I have been adding all that I can find for the Slaymaker line. If would like to help I will add your line info as well. I have been and became a member of the historical Society of Frederick County, MD They had some of the data I entered for your line.

I am form Mathias II line. John MacPherson married Elizabeth Slaymaker in 1778. I use McPherson to avoid confusion and duplication mistakes.

I update every Sunday evening with what I have found and received from "Cousins". I did receive the will and more children for William Mathias Slaymaker this week. So you need to check the World-Connect file weekly.

I will try and find the site with the maiden name of Catherine tomorrow morning, and will add a note because you are not the only cousins that have asked that question.

Regards,
Lowell Thomas, son of Jennie Silverwood MacPherson (THOMAS) of Northumberland County, PA.

SLAYMAKER. Among the old and honored families of Lancaster county, there are a few which have become particularly conspicuous on account of their identification with the progress and development of their localities, and their peculiar fitness for the positions of trust and responsibility in which they have been placed by their fellow-citizens. Such in a marked degree is the case in the Slaymaker family.

In its German orthography the name was spelled Schleurmacher, and was one held in high esteem in its native land. When Mathias Schleurmacher, or Slaymaker, left Germany to find wider opportunities in the New World, his immediate family in Strasburg, were people of position and eminence, one being a clergyman of repute, and another a diplomatist of celebrity, being at that time secretary of Legation from the German government, to the Court of St. James, afterward becoming Charge d'affairs to the same place. Mathias was also a man of judgment and foresight, and when he reached America in 1710, he made a wise selection of land in the State of Pennsylvania. His purchase was 1000 acres from the London Co., and its location was in what was then known as the London Lands, then situated in Strasburg, now Paradise township. Building his log cabin near a beautiful spring of clear, pure water, he settled down to an agricultural life, clearing up his land as quickly as possible, the whole of it being at that time but a wilderness. Being a man of gigantic size, he compelled the respect and admiration of his savage neighbors, who were ever impressed by physical strength, while his honesty and kindness in dealing with the Indians won for him their respect and friendship, a matter of no little moment in that unsettled region. Mathias Slaymaker not only gave the name to Strasburg, but he liberally contributed to the county's improvement, cleared lands, made roads, built school houses and encouraged religious movements, filling out to the utmost our idea of a useful and noble life. He was permitted a long career, and the work he did laid the foundations upon which his family and fellow-citizens have since builded. His remains lie in the old cemetery of the Presbyterian Church, in Leacock township, where many of the family rest. The five sons of Mathias Slaymaker were: John, Lawrence, Mathias, Henry and Daniel; while his daughters were: Margaret and Barbara. All record of Lawrence disappeared after he joined a band of pioneers and went to the West. Mathias purchased that portion of the original 1,000 acres which, in 1832, belonged to his great-grandsons, John M. and Nathan E., the latter of whom was for many years the secretary and treasurer of the Lancaster County Mutual Insurance Co. John, son of Mathias the settler, was the father of the late Capt. John Slaymaker of Paradise township, and he became a soldier in Braddock's army at the age of twenty-two years, participating in the disastrous battle of Braddock's Field, later becoming a captain in the Revolutionary army. After the close of that war he returned to his home in Lancaster county, and ended his long term of public service as commissioner of this county, his death occurring in 1798, at the age of sixty-five years.

SCHLEIERMACHER-FERREE CONNECTION:

In 1685, when Louis XIV revoked the Edict of Nantes, which granted religious freedom, he sent soldiers to all towns and villages to kill the Protestants and confiscate their properties. Daniel and Marie escaped to Germany where their daughter, Mary Catherine was born. It is believed that Daniel died while the family lived in Strasbourg. Details of his death are lacking; One report says he was slain during the insurrection in France following the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes.2 He may have died before 1708 in Lindau, Bavaria. After Daniel died, his wife assumed her maiden name for safety.

The family moved from Strasbourg to a safer area in Lindau Bavaria where they heard of a "new Moses", William Penn, who was selling his rich land in the New World cheaply, title to which would ensure owners political asylum and freedom of opportunity and religion. March 10, 1708, Mary Ferree and her seven children, along with a young couple they had befriended in Strasbourg, Mathias and Catherine Schleiermacher, were pass ported by the Bavarian Civil Service to immigrate "via Holland and England to the Island of Pennsylvania to reside there." Final clearance came on May l0 from the pastor and deacons of the Reformed Walloon Church, who described them as professors of "the Pure Reformed Religion ... without having given cause for scandal that has come to our knowledge."

The little band traversed the Palatinate's burned-out landscape toward the riot of spires and masts that marked the maritime metropolis of Rotterdam. After sailing on a bark to London, they settled in a Palatine colony in Spitalfields.

"Being people of substance, the Ferree-Schleiermachers formed the nucleus around which poorer transients gathered. Through Penn agents, Madame Ferree was their spokesman to, and in dickering with, William Penn. He asked that she be brought to his London residence for an interview. The cultured and indomitable widow so impressed the proprietor that he petitioned the sovereign herself for an audience. This occurred on August 27, 1708."4 "It was obvious that England's Queen Anne took pleasure in the company of women of accomplishment, for after one sitting, she granted Madame Ferree a patent of naturalization, covering all fifty-four of the persons in the Ferree-Schleiermacher entourage. Permission for the group to colonize in America was granted in the same instrument."

"Mathias Schleiermacher and Mary Ferree's holdings comprised roughly four thousand acres from agent Martin Kendig's large share of Penn's 1710 land grant in the Pequea Valley. Possession could not be effected until the surveyor general of the province finished subdividing. Payment was then to be made to agent Kendig. Martin Kendig, like other Penn agent-servants, was a middleman for the proprietor. Penn dispensed with the work of getting settlers by allowing agents to take a commission on any portions of their own grants sold. The only injunctions laid down were those that could be expected; customers had to be "Godly" and able to come across with the money."

"Since surveying would take two years, it was decided that the Ferree-Schleiermacher group would cross the Atlantic and proceed up the Hudson River to a Huguenot colony at Esopus. When surveying was completed in Pennsylvania, they could descend to their Promised Lands."

"In early September, 1708, safely aboard the ship Lyon, the Pool of London, with its forest of masts, slipped back into the city's sooty mists, behind the Ferree-Schleiermachers and their band. The encircling horizon now became green-blue ocean for six weeks of hard biscuits, salted fish, pickled pork, scents of pitch and brine, squeaks and groans of straining rigging.

"When the ship Lyon entered the Hudson River the immigrants experienced deeply felt emotions of thanksgiving. After the Reverend Josiah Kochesthal led the group in prayer, they embraced. With laughs and tears they probably commented on the familiar Rhine-like appearance of the Hudson's steep wooded hills. They must have been thankful that they made it to Esopus before the river froze and rejoiced to settle down in the log cabins of their hosts before the first snow fell."

For two years these immigrants waited at Esopus. In 1710 word reached them that their Pequea Valley lands had been surveyed. When the ice was melted in early spring, they set sail downriver to the ocean, but this time only to coast along the shoreline to the mouth of the Delaware and up the river to Philadelphia.

When Mary Ferree and her friends put into Philadelphia, they found bustling markets with dairy cattle, sheep, oxen, and horses; descendants of the original Swedish stock. From full-to-the-rafters stores they bought hardware, smoked meat, and flour. Maps of their holdings were prepared in the office of Penn's secretary, James Logan. The Pequea Valley comprised the western extremity of Chester County and was referred to as Conestoga Township. The valley was watered by two small, southwesterly-flowing rivers, the Pequea and, a few miles to its west, the Conestoga. Both emptied into the Susquehanna River.

Penn's west road had been extended through Chester County to the Gap in the Hills. Here it crossed the trading road running south to New Castle. By 1710 the west road from Philadelphia was being pushed southwesterly to the Susquehanna. It was called the Great Conestoga Road. It was over this dirt path that the Ferree-Schleiermacher caravan of wagons bumped west on a summer's day in 1710.
Reports of the settlers' arrival have it that Madame Ferree stepped in front of the others to meet the first deerskin-clad native, who stated that he would take them to their lands. Mary Ferree's family was among the first 5,000 of 150,000 Huguenots to arrive in America. Madame Anna Marie De Warrembere Ferree was the founder of the Pequea Valley, PA Huguenot colony in 1712 in Lancaster Co. One of her first actions was to vest in trustees a piece of land for a cemetery and she is buried in the SE corner.

MATHIAS [1] SCHLEIERMACHER was born Abt. 1685 in Hesse Cassel, Strasburg, Germany[1], and died November 25, 1762 in Gap, Lancaster Co , Pa.[1]. He married CATHERINE SCIEBELL February 1725/26 in Germany[1]. She was born WFT Est. 1691-1707 in Germany[1], and died in Lancaster Co, Pa.[1].

Notes for MATHIAS SCHLEIERMACHER :Mathias emigrated from Strausberg, Germany about 1710. He was born and lived in Hess Castle. In America he settled on what is called the "London Lands", a tract of one thousand acres in Strasburg; supposedly named by him; he was at the time surrrounded by Indians. He had two brothers, one of whom was a clergyman and settled in the Emperor's Dominion, high up in Germany. He was appointed Secretary of Legation from that Government to the Court of St. James. Afterwards was Charge d'Affairs and there conducted the marriage of President John Adams. While minister to the Court of St. James he resided with one of his descendants. His oldest son was the Governor of an unknown island.

Mathias' other brother was a Mayor in the King of Prussia's full regiment and afterwards it is probabe, that his son was one of the officers (a Major) in the Hession Troops, as a soldier of that name was confined as prisoner of war in the Lancaster Jail.
The "London Lands" descended to Mathias' four sons: John, Henry , Mathias and Daniel. John paid 800 pounds for 346 acres in 1761

SLAYMAKER. Among the old and honored families of Lancaster county, there are a few which have become particularly conspicuous on account of their identification with the progress and development of their localities, and their peculiar fitness for the positions of trust and responsibility in which they have been placed by their fellow-citizens. Such in a marked degree is the case in the Slaymaker family.

In its German orthography the name was spelled Schleurmacher, and was one held in high esteem in its native land. When Mathias Schleurmacher, or Slaymaker, left Germany to find wider opportunities in the New World, his immediate family in Strasburg, were people of position and eminence, one being a clergyman of repute, and another a diplomatist of celebrity, being at that time secretary of Legation from the German government, to the Court of St. James, afterward becoming Charge d'affairs to the same place. Mathias was also a man of judgment and foresight, and when he reached America in 1710, he made a wise selection of land in the State of Pennsylvania. His purchase was 1000 acres from the London Co., and its location was in what was then known as the London Lands, then situated in Strasburg, now Paradise township. Building his log cabin near a beautiful spring of clear, pure water, he settled down to an agricultural life, clearing up his land as quickly as possible, the whole of it being at that time but a wilderness. Being a man of gigantic size, he compelled the respect and admiration of his savage neighbors, who were ever impressed by physical strength, while his honesty and kindness in dealing with the Indians won for him their respect and friendship, a matter of no little moment in that unsettled region. Mathias Slaymaker not only gave the name to Strasburg, but he liberally contributed to the county's improvement, cleared lands, made roads, built school houses and encouraged religious movements, filling out to the utmost our idea of a useful and noble life. He was permitted a long career, and the work he did laid the foundations upon which his family and fellow-citizens have since builded. His remains lie in the old cemetery of the Presbyterian Church, in Leacock township, where many of the family rest. The five sons of Mathias Slaymaker were: John, Lawrence, Mathias, Henry and Daniel; while his daughters were: Margaret and Barbara. All record of Lawrence disappeared after he joined a band of pioneers and went to the West. Mathias purchased that portion of the original 1,000 acres which, in 1832, belonged to his great-grandsons, John M. and Nathan E., the latter of whom was for many years the secretary and treasurer of the Lancaster County Mutual Insurance Co. John, son of Mathias the settler, was the father of the late Capt. John Slaymaker of Paradise township, and he became a soldier in Braddock's army at the age of twenty-two years, participating in the disastrous battle of Braddock's Field, later becoming a captain in the Revolutionary army. After the close of that war he returned to his home in Lancaster county, and ended his long term of public service as commissioner of this county, his death occurring in 1798, at the age of sixty-five years.

SCHLEIERMACHER-FERREE CONNECTION:

In 1685, when Louis XIV revoked the Edict of Nantes, which granted religious freedom, he sent soldiers to all towns and villages to kill the Protestants and confiscate their properties. Daniel and Marie escaped to Germany where their daughter, Mary Catherine was born. It is believed that Daniel died while the family lived in Strasbourg. Details of his death are lacking; One report says he was slain during the insurrection in France following the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes.2 He may have died before 1708 in Lindau, Bavaria. After Daniel died, his wife assumed her maiden name for safety.

The family moved from Strasbourg to a safer area in Lindau Bavaria where they heard of a "new Moses", William Penn, who was selling his rich land in the New World cheaply, title to which would ensure owners political asylum and freedom of opportunity and religion. March 10, 1708, Mary Ferree and her seven children, along with a young couple they had befriended in Strasbourg, Mathias and Catherine Schleiermacher, were pass ported by the Bavarian Civil Service to immigrate "via Holland and England to the Island of Pennsylvania to reside there." Final clearance came on May l0 from the pastor and deacons of the Reformed Walloon Church, who described them as professors of "the Pure Reformed Religion ... without having given cause for scandal that has come to our knowledge."

The little band traversed the Palatinate's burned-out landscape toward the riot of spires and masts that marked the maritime metropolis of Rotterdam. After sailing on a bark to London, they settled in a Palatine colony in Spitalfields.

"Being people of substance, the Ferree-Schleiermachers formed the nucleus around which poorer transients gathered. Through Penn agents, Madame Ferree was their spokesman to, and in dickering with, William Penn. He asked that she be brought to his London residence for an interview. The cultured and indomitable widow so impressed the proprietor that he petitioned the sovereign herself for an audience. This occurred on August 27, 1708."4 "It was obvious that England's Queen Anne took pleasure in the company of women of accomplishment, for after one sitting, she granted Madame Ferree a patent of naturalization, covering all fifty-four of the persons in the Ferree-Schleiermacher entourage. Permission for the group to colonize in America was granted in the same instrument."

"Mathias Schleiermacher and Mary Ferree's holdings comprised roughly four thousand acres from agent Martin Kendig's large share of Penn's 1710 land grant in the Pequea Valley. Possession could not be effected until the surveyor general of the province finished subdividing. Payment was then to be made to agent Kendig. Martin Kendig, like other Penn agent-servants, was a middleman for the proprietor. Penn dispensed with the work of getting settlers by allowing agents to take a commission on any portions of their own grants sold. The only injunctions laid down were those that could be expected; customers had to be "Godly" and able to come across with the money."

"Since surveying would take two years, it was decided that the Ferree-Schleiermacher group would cross the Atlantic and proceed up the Hudson River to a Huguenot colony at Esopus. When surveying was completed in Pennsylvania, they could descend to their Promised Lands."

"In early September, 1708, safely aboard the ship Lyon, the Pool of London, with its forest of masts, slipped back into the city's sooty mists, behind the Ferree-Schleiermachers and their band. The encircling horizon now became green-blue ocean for six weeks of hard biscuits, salted fish, pickled pork, scents of pitch and brine, squeaks and groans of straining rigging.
